

Downsizing

What is Downsizing?

Downsizing is when a garment is taken in to be altered to the size you want.

When do you Downsize?

Downsizing is generally performed when there is no stock available of a size you want.

Please note the following for Downsizing:

- We only Downsize by ONE size, never more than one.
- We only take in the side seams and taper the sleeves.
- The shoulder size, sleeve length and body length remain the same.
- If golf shirts with slits have to be downsized, the slits will be removed.

We do not Downsize the following styles:

- Jackets that are lined and padded.
- Golf shirts with details, two-tone panels or stripes.
- Stock where the size has been printed onto the back of the garment. If this is the case and we MUST downsize, then we have to ask production if they can block out the size and add the new size – this adds extra time.
- Long sleeved shirts, as we cannot change the cuff size.
- Shirts with pockets on the chest, as the pocket will move further to the side.
- We cannot downsize any garment without a side seam.
- If we have to downsize a difficult item; production has to do a sample first to see if it can be done and how long it will take.
